

FRIENDS OF STOGUMBER STATION

Leading to a Better Railway

STOGUMBER station was first opened on 31st March 1862. Due to the steep sided bank on the platform side, the station building is unusually sited on the opposite side to the platform. In GWR days, the station boasted a goods shed and camping coach, and the cattle dock still exists. In 1971, as part of the Beeching axe, the Minehead branch closed taking the picturesque Stogumber station with it.

HOWEVER, all was not lost as preservationists moved in, and in 1978 the station re-opened as part of the West Somerset Railway.

TODAY, the Friends of Stogumber Station (FoSS) take care of, and run the station with the aim of replicating a Great Western Railway country station as it was prior to nationalisation in 1948.

By joining FoSS you'll receive a newsletter – the Buzzard Chronicle, which can be either e-mailed to you, or sent through the post, as well as up-to-date information of the goings on at this one time typical country station. So why not join FOSS today and revisit the life of the isolated wayside station complete with steam trains passing by and a friendly cup of tea!
